

Dr. Farah Jasmine Griffin

Dr. Farah Jasmine Griffin is William B. Ransford Professor of English and Comparative Literature and African-American Studies at Columbia University. Dr. Griffin received her Ph.D. from Yale University. She is the author of "Who Set you Flowin – The African-American Migration Narrative" (New York: Oxford University Press, 1995), as well as "If You Can't Be Free, Be a Mystery: In Search of Billie Holiday," (New York: The Free Press, 2001) and "Clawing at the Limits of Cool: Miles Davis, John Coltrane and The Greatest Jazz Collaboration Ever," (Thomas Dunne Press, 2008).